Homepage Ninja Launches Free Online Cloud-Based Bookmarks Manager

Washington D.C. – Nov 10, 2015 – Homepage Ninja (<https://homepage.ninja>) has launched a free online bookmarks manager where you can view and organize your favorite links on the cloud while having access to them from any browser or device. Bookmarks can be customized visually and textually, while links can be organized in specific lists with custom titles and descriptions. A touch interface can also be used when organizing and sorting links.

“Most people have a list of websites they visit on a daily or weekly basis. Some browsers will manage these links for you, but they are lost when you open a different browser or use a different computer or mobile device,” said Founder Enoch Lee. “Homepage Ninja simplifies this process by giving users a centralized place to have access to their favorite links and bookmarks that can be viewed on any browser. This will help users save time from remembering complicated URLs or having to manually type them in. They will also have access to their links in one place on the cloud.”

Bookmarks and favorite links are organized by using a drag a drop interface that works on your computer and touch screen device. Visual links can be customized with your own images or from a collection of icons available to users. Bookmarks shown on the user’s homepage can be made private or shared publicly. Homepage Ninja is a responsive website that is displayed properly on many different monitors, screens, and devices. Users can set their browser’s homepage to use their Homepage Ninja’s homepage, which will give them access to their links whenever they open their browser.

“Homepage Ninja will help people have more control over their favorite links while presenting them in a visually appealing way,” says Lee. “Using the newest web technologies, it is easy for you to use your computer or touch screen for organizing your links while having the optimal viewing and interactive experience across a wide range of devices (from your laptop, desktop, tablet, or phone). As a result, you will be able to easily access and organize your links from all your devices.”

Homepage Ninja can be accessed through the web browser and does not require any apps, programs, or extensions to be installed. It is 100% free to join and use online.
